Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital honors Luck's retirement

Friday, November 25, 2011 10:01 AM PST

Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital, a world leader in pediatric orthopaedic treatment, research and education, celebrated its centennial anniversary and honored Dr. James V. Luck Jr. during an event on Nov. 4 at the Lexus Landmark Showroom in Santa Monica.

Honorary LAOH centennial event co-Chairs were Thomas V. McKernan, chief executive officer of the Automobile Club of Southern California, and Dr. Robert R. Dockson, philanthropist and retired chairman and CEO of California Federal Bank.

"Dr. Luck became chief executive officer of Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital in 1989, and through his leadership, the institution has experienced the greatest expansion in its history," McKernan said. "The alliance with UCLA attests to the power and strength of Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital, and it was an idea that saw its genesis in Jim's mind's eye. He has worked tirelessly to make it a reality."

Both McKernan and Dockson accepted the event co-chair positions out of their admiration and respect for LAOH, its 100-year history and continuing impact on the community, and Luck's lifetime commitment to the institution.

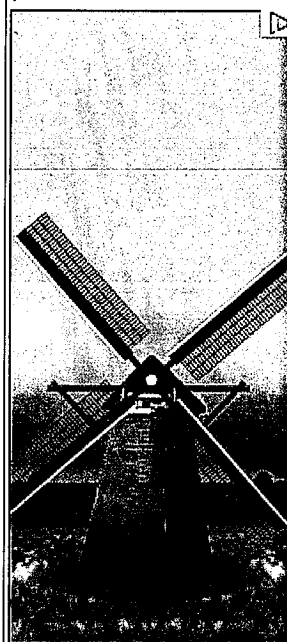

A blend

"Jim Luck started volunteering at Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital 50 years ago when he was in high school, and after completing his residency through USC in 1969, he has never left," McKernan said. "His leadership is extraordinary."

LAOH recently announced that Dr. Anthony A. Scaduto will serve as the interim president and CEO of Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital. Scaduto replaces Luck, who announced his plans to retire as president
